Dear Friend of COOPI Suisse,

In 2019, the world became once again a theatre of serious humanitarian emergencies: from conflicts to climate change, crises were numerous and often affected countries already exposed and with very few resources.

COOPI Suisse, thanks to your fundamental support, has been able to intervene in various crises and support populations in serious difficulty: we have tackled malnutrition in Niger, we have continued to bring children affected by the war in Iraq back to school, we have made water accessible in Sudan and supported rural development in Chad.

Without your contribution all this would not have been possible. Year after year, many of you trust us and support us regularly: a fundamental help that combines the value of the contribution itself with the irreplaceable value of continuity over time. The same that some of our institutional partners are demonstrating to which we are also very grateful.

Thanks to this consistency we can plan the interventions by choosing to carry out even large-scale projects, which will produce lasting effects.

In doing so, we pay utmost attention to our work. Our seriousness and transparency in using the resources you have entrusted us with this year have also been recognized by the Zewo Foundation, which evaluates and monitors organisations that raise funds in Switzerland since 1936, and which has given us the opportunity to use its well-known brand mark, a guarantee for transparency and reliability

Therefore, the year 2019 was full of projects in countries that continue to face enormous difficulties and that will need assistance in the near future. Don't let us miss your precious contribution: once again, it is together that we can really ... change history!

Best wishes

Carla Ricci

CONTRASTING CHILD MALNUTRITION IN NIGER

2,200 malnourished children have been attended to in 16 centers supported by the project
3,300 people
Have access to drinking water and better hygiene
and sanitary conditions

In Niger acute malnutrition is an emergency and the growing fragility of the country increases the inability to cope with massive cases of severe acute malnutrition, extreme food insecurity and the needs of the many displaced people.

In the Tillabery region, malnutrition among children under 5 years of age remains the main problem and gradually tends to become chronic as a result of exposure to repeated infections and precarious living conditions, limiting children's growth.

Here COOPI Suisse combats malnutrition by distributing medicines to 16 health centers in the districts of Tillabéry and Ayorou, thus reaching approximately 2,200 malnourished children and improving the conditions of hygiene and access to water for approximately 3,300 people, both at community level and directly in homes where children in care live. This project is coordinated with an articulated program of measures to combat malnutrition, strengthen the health system and increase community resilience implemented in the region by the COOPI Foundation and other international partners.

“When I arrived, the operators welcomed me and after visiting the little girl they immediately told me that Maiva suffered severely from malnutrition, malaria and anaemia. They told me to go immediately to the Intensive Nutritional Recovery Center. I was shaken and disoriented by this news. Once I arrived at the Intensive Care Center, I found myself in a hospital environment that I never knew of. When I got there, my daughter was very weak, she couldn’t even hold her head up. The nurses immediately took care of her: they hospitalized her and gave me the indications that I had to follow to support her recovery. After only 7 days Maiva was much better. I was very worried about my daughter and didn’t know what to do. Now I hope that all children suffering from malnutrition can heal and survive.”

EDUCATION IN EMERGENCIES IN IRAQ

1,812 students
supported in resuming their education
3,144 students have appropriate hygiene
and sanitary conditions

In a dramatic setting, such as that experienced in Iraq in recent years, the return to school is crucial. In the classroom, children and teenagers can resume their interrupted education, but school is also a place to gradually return to normality and stability in a safe environment, protected from violence. COOPI Suisse and the COOPI Foundation therefore continue their joint efforts in Iraq to bring as many children as possible back to school.

In the sub-district of Qayyarah, south of Mosul, released by ISIS in October 2017, many children are still denied access to school. Most school buildings have been destroyed and those still existing are insufficient and lack most of the equipment and teaching material. In 2018, COOPI Suisse supported here two Emergency Education projects helping more than 300 children return to school. In the district of Mosul, however, there are still many children who have been unable to resume their studies regularly. In 2019, COOPI Suisse, also thanks to the contribution of a generous private donor, provided the necessary school supplies for another 1,812 students from 5 schools which were reopened or expanded together with the COOPI Foundation in Qayyarah and the surrounding area: 3 container schools and 2 permanent schools reopened, where insufficient school spaces have been expanded with the construction of 4 additional classrooms.

“Furthermore, in the western part of Mosul, appropriate hygiene and sanitary conditions have been restored in 4 schools, where COOPI Suisse provided hygiene kits to 3,144 students.”

*We asked Samir, a 13-year-old student in one of the renovated schools in Qayyarah, what has changed thanks to COOPI's intervention and what he thinks of his new school. Here is what he replied:
"Before COOPI's intervention, the classes were overcrowded, when I entered, I could barely sit in a corner and I was never able to follow the lesson. Since the new classes have been built, every student has his own seat, can focus on lessons, we have access to water and toilets. I am happy in the new school and I am more peaceful in my new class.*

WATER BASINS IN SUDAN

2 hafir with drinking water were put into operation

More than 8,000 people have clean water

2 hafir management committees have been established and trained

Limited access to an adequate amount of clean water for domestic, agricultural and livestock use is one of the main causes of Sudan’s fragility.

In particular, in North Darfur about 80% of the population depends on agriculture and pastoralism and the progressive decrease in rainfall has disastrous consequences for local livelihoods. To collect the little water available, in addition to the wells, there are dams and artificial ponds known as “hafir”. However, these are not enough and are often difficult to reach and, in many cases, require rehabilitation to be used in appropriate hygienic conditions.

Here, COOPI Suisse constructed two hafirs with clean water, available to the population, bringing a direct benefit to more than 1,300 families and a positive impact for the entire population of the region.

In the locality of Rahad Al Nabad, a new 80x72 meter large, four meters deep hafir was built for the 750 families of the neighbouring villages.

In Um Keddada, thanks also to the contribution of the AIL (Aziende Industriali di Lugano), a hafir 150x58 meter large and four meters deep was rehabilitated for almost 600 families from the 11 neighbouring villages and their 7,000 head of cattle (cattle, goats, sheep and camels).

The projects also included the creation and training of two hafir management committees which included several women.

We thank for the support

“During my field visit, I attended a meeting with the Um Keddada hafir management committee. We talked about the interventions still to be carried out, how to coordinate them, the need to take action quickly before the rainy season starts, the contribution of everyone; but we also talked of some first initiatives that the rehabilitation of the hafir would have made possible such as a nursery and a solar-powered water point. Talking to the committee members helped me to understand the population’s perception of the intervention and who will benefit from it long term: meeting the committee members was a precious opportunity to further mutual understanding and to find suitable solutions together with those who will live with these decisions day by day”.

TOGETHER WITH ITS SHEPHERDS AND FARMERS, SUPPORTING THE DEVELOPMENT OF CHAD

More than 2,200 people belonging to agro-pastoral groups involved, 30% of whom are women

100 officials from local administrative authorities trained

10 local understanding committees involved

2 permanent veterinary centers built

COOPI Suisse has been active in Chad since 2013, supporting projects for the protection of children, the fight against malnutrition and in food security.

The Sila region, in the eastern part of the country, is characterized by a very fragile economy based essentially on agriculture and livestock production. Here, conflicts over land use between shepherds and farmers are a recurring issue. Furthermore, most people do not know the local rules for land use. In this situation it is necessary to find agreements between the parties and, where they are lacking, to define rules to be respected, in order to then be able to deal “only” with fighting poverty and guaranteeing peace.

In the districts of Kimiti and Djourfal Amar, COOPI Suisse promotes two distinct, but allied, interventions to improve local capacity for managing natural resources and to support the development of the livestock sector.

Thanks to the contribution of the Canton Ticino in 2019, a campaign for the dissemination of the regional legislation was carried out and local conventions were signed for the use of land. Furthermore, training cycles on conflict management were carried out.

These interventions are part of a large three-year project for the promotion of a concerted, sustainable and equitable management of the pastoral resources of the area created together with the COOPI Foundation and various other local partners and institutions.

At the same time, on the zootechnical front, the construction of two permanent veterinary centers for the vaccination of livestock has started, which will allow the communities to vaccinate 150 animals at a time in adequate hygienic and managerial conditions, thus also limiting the widespread problem of epidemics among livestock.

We thank  for the support

THE FILM FESTIVAL OF HUMAN RIGHTS: SPORT WITHOUT BARRIERS

Khartoum Offside, by the Arabian director Marwa Zein, is a story of women's emancipation through football

The documentary engages its audience in the protagonists' struggle for the right to play and train on the national team of Sudan, a country where religion, politics and traditions stifle women's dreams, wishes and desires.

The screening of the documentary on October 13th at the sixth edition of the Lugano Human Rights Film Festival was followed by an in-depth discussion with Beatrice Malasoma, COOPI project coordinator in Darfur, Simona Gennari, a former football player for Lugano Rapid and the Swiss national team, and the moderator, Natascia Bandecchi, a RSI journalist.

WORLD PEACE FORUM: PEACE IN THE HEART OF HUMAN RIGHTS

The links between the recognition of fundamental rights, access to resources and peace were at the center of the two workshops that COOPI Suisse carried out together with Amnesty International on November 11th at the "Villaggio della Pace 2019" at the Palazzo dei Congressi in Lugano..

An intense educational day on matters of peace animated by organizations and professionals of the sector who have made their experience and know-how available, bringing to life 11 workshops on humanitarian issues, peace and respect for human beings, animals and nature within the IX World Peace Forum.

TRASGUARDI - THE WORLD IN A PARK: RESOURCES AND FOOD SECURITY

How many planets would it take if the world population consumed at the rate of the average Swiss citizen?

This is one of the questions that COOPI Suisse's volunteers asked visitors during the 2019 edition of "The world in a park" (Un mondo al parco), an intercultural event organized by FOSIT and the City of Lugano, held on Saturday September 21st at the Ciani park in Lugano.

This game, which included a series of questions and answers, allowed COOPI Suisse to help visitors reflect on the critical matter of food security.

CONNECTED WORLDS: A ROUND TABLE AT SUPSI

UNESCO describes global citizenship education as a practice that develops one's sense of belonging to a wider community and to common humanity by underlining the interdependencies between different countries and populations.

The Department of Business Economics, Health and Social Services of SUPSI - University of Applied Sciences and Arts of Southern Switzerland, presented a cycle of two evenings open to the public on the theme of global citizenship, moderated by the contributions of significant guests.

COOPI Suisse participated together with four other NGOs from Ticino at the Round Table on December 3rd 2019, discussing the theme "Educating in the South of the world: good practices in the context of international cooperation", with the moderation of Fulvio Poletti.

Look for me among the living

I made a testamentary bequest to COOPI.
You will always find me where there is joy, planning and hope.

I decided to give part of my possessions to COOPI, to fight poverty in the world. And I feel happy, as if I had received the gift myself. I gave a future to the values I believe in, because I spread joy and hope and I will be present in a project that bears my signature. Look out and you will find me in the serenity of those who have seen their lives change; you will find me there, among the living.

To pursue its mission, COOPI Suisse relies above all on private funds. For the fourth consecutive year, in 2019 the direct dialogue campaign further increased significantly the volume of our fundraising activity and the number of regular donors. These contributions, together with some significant funds from companies, foundations and other institutional bodies, have enabled the Organization to finance an increasing number of activities in 2019 compared to the previous years.

Thanks to its membership in the international COOPI network, COOPI Suisse was also able to finance most of the management and promotional costs with the contribution it receives from the COOPI Foundation, allocating the result of the fundraising mainly to the activities of the various projects in the field.

Since its constitution, the annual balance sheets of COOPI Suisse are audited externally. In 2019, the organization's financial statement was controlled by REBEFID Sagl.

This year COOPI Suisse obtained the Zewo certification from the independent Zewo Foundation, committed since 1936 to evaluating and monitoring the organizations that raise funds in Switzerland: a further guarantee of transparency and reliability for the Organization's donors.
